Foreword

As another school year closes and is written in history, we begin to think of the many memories of the past year which have been indelibly marked in our minds.

No, we cannot relive the past, but we may better remember the good times if they are in pictures. The staff of the 1961 Torch has strived to preserve the many faces and events of the past year in pictures. In years to come, you may use this book to look back and to remember the familiar faces and pleasant events of the 1960-1961 school year at the Mount Berry School for Boys.

as one of our most precious high school memories. Words can't express our appreciation for their various contributions; but to show how much we love, honor, and respect them, the senior class dedicates the 1961 Torch to their housemothers. Mrs. Mary Morton Winton and Mrs. Ethel Colquitt.

History of Our Schools

Early in life, Martha Berry started visiting the cabins of the mountain folk in the Blue Ridge Mountains around her home near Rome, Georgia. Here, she saw the bitterness of the poverty-stricken lives and realized even as a young girl their lack of opportunity to better themselves.

These descendants of the old Scottish, English, and Irish families who had settled in the hills were prevented from competing in the local labor markets by lack of skills, inherent pride, and fierce independence. Hence, they did not have even the small pay they could have derived from such work, but struggled along tending their mountain patches for a bare existence.

Martha McChesney Berry was born in 1866, the second of eight children. Her father, Thomas Berry, left his plantation home in Virginia when he was twenty and settled in North Georgia.

At an early age, Martha Berry persuaded her father to allow her to attend school at home. He built a log school-house in the grove at Oak Hill, where she was tutored by a governess. At sixteen, she was sent away to Madame LeFebre's School in Baltimore, where she remained for only one year, preferring home, her family, and native surroundings to finishing school and the European tour, most well-to-do families considered important for their daughters.

On a Sunday afternoon in 1900, while playing the small melodeon in the schoolhouse, Miss Berry was surprised to see several small mountain children, as shy as fawns, peering in the window. Inviting them in, she asked if they had been to Sunday School, only to learn that these children of an innately religious people had never even heard of Sunday School. While spending the remainder of the afternoon singing and playing hymns and reading Bible stories to the children, she little dreamed that she was founding the nucleus of the renowned Berry Schools that have since lighted the way for many thousands.

On the following Sunday the children returned with their friends and relatives. Before long, Miss Berry found herself with four Sunday Schools in different parts of the foothills.

Along with spiritual training, she began teaching in the schools on weekdays. She built a schoolhouse across from the little cabin and engaged another teacher. Day schools did not prove practical. The children were often kept at home to perform farm chores or lived so far back in the hills on the mountain trails that it was impossible for them to reach school in bad weather.

Realizing this, she took a large part of the inheritance from her father and built a large dormitory to house the boys who were going to work with their hands to provide the means for a formal education.

She was determined that these students should live, learn and work in physical and spiritual beauty. To accomplish this, she was most careful of the school's architecture and she herself, with a natural talent for landscaping, planted the grounds, which she deeded to the schools to make sure the children attending would be her only heirs.

The boarding school opened on January 2, 1902, with a few select boys from her surrounding day schools, and the Martha Berry School at Mount Berry, Georgia, started.

The tuition could be paid or earned, but the boys had to do some work regardless of how the tuition was paid. They were taught to cook, to wash clothes, and Miss Berry consulted experts on farming and dairying to enable her to guide the boys in field and dairy work.

Her zeal in extolling the virtues of the mountain people won the audience and this was the beginning of many such expeditions all over the country.

Word of the school and the happiness of its students spread throughout the hills and it soon became a problem to take care of all the boys who wished to attend the school for a time, and put in three months' work for a year of study. In 1909, the Berry School for girls opened, the first buildings being built by the boys. Today, there is the Mount Berry School for Boys and the co-ed Mount Berry College.

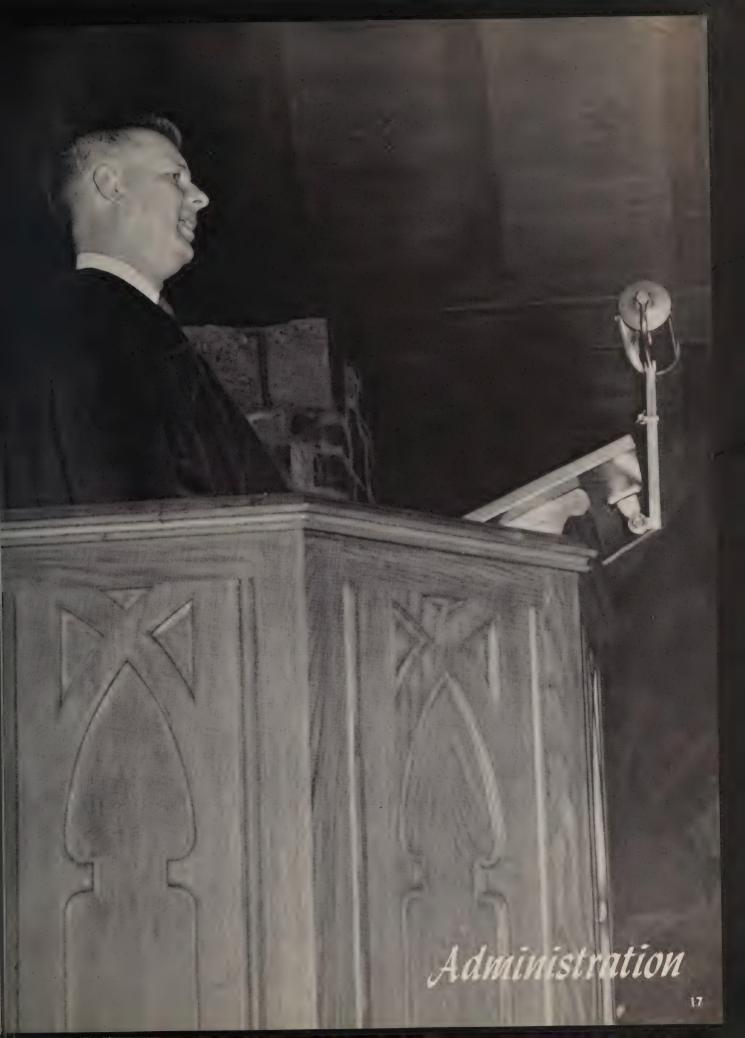

The Berry Schools now have more than one hundred buildings, more than thirty thousand acres of pasture, fields and forests, and a campus said to be the most beautiful in America. Its buildings in Georgian Colonial, Greek Revival, and Gothic architecture make an impressive sight along with the simple original log structures.

One of the most generous gifts ever made to the school was that of Henry Ford, who stopped by for a visit and was so impressed with what he saw that he gave three million dollars to construct the Girls' School.

The Mount Berry Chapel, which seats 1600 people, is one of the most beautiful buildings on the campus. The Frost Memorial Chapel, located on the high school campus, is constructed of native stone the boys at the school cut. They also built its pews and carved the pulpit.

There have been sixteen thousand graduates from the Berry Schools. Its alumni include scientists, teachers, lawyers, editors, and, in fact, people in almost every profession.

Each year, thousands of people visit the Berry Schools. Here, they see the realization of the dream of unassuming, gently bred Martha Berry.

President's Message

May I take this opportunity to congratulate each of you on your achievements this year at the Mount Berry School for Boys. Your school has provided you a yardstick for educated manhood; and you 1961 graduates, through years of academic study, work experience, and Christian living have measured up.

You can be proud to be a graduate of the Mount Berry School for Boys. The school is what you have helped make it, but graduation has no built-in guarantees for success. You can maintain your ascending course, and that of your school, only if all of you graduates continue to have aspirations and to work hard. You will, I am certain, never cease growing in religious faith, in knowledge, and in ability to do a job well.

With these personal forces in motion, exerting the strengths you have gained at Mount Berry School for Boys, you can and will achieve leadership in your endeavors with your fellow men. Positive leadership for the right was never more needed than now.

To be associated with you is a particularly inspiring experience for me. My thoughts and prayers will continue to be with you.

JOHN R. BERTRAND President, Mount Berry School for Boys

Mr. Fred H. Loveday

Principal's Message

On our school ring you find these four words: TRUTH, LOYALTY, HONOR, WISDOM.

To honestly and sincerely seek the TRUTH in all things is to set your face toward the attainment of the highest level of intellectual and emotional maturity. "Know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

A man is no greater than the ideals, relationships, and institutions to which he gives his LOYALTY. Through loyalty to something finer and greater than yourself, you can multiply your potential for happiness and usefulness.

In the constant guarding of your HONOR, you can achieve a certain greatness of character. To live in dishonor is to dissipate strength and to suffer the agonies of death many times.

To use rightly the knowledge that you have gained is WISDOM. Wisdom necessitates humility for, although we might know much, we must recognize the vastness of the unknown. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."

Among the other things symbolized by your school ring, let it be a reminder of Berry's desires, hopes, and prayers for you. Try constantly to translate your Berry experiences into the finest level of the great ideas signified by the four words on your ring in order that you may more effectively live the motto: "Not to be ministered unto, but to minister."

For many years, the Mount Berry School for Boys has felt the need for a means of giving recognition to the outstanding members of its senior class. Seeking to fill this need, the 1961 Torch introduces "Who's Who at the Mount Berry School for Boys," which takes the place of the old "Senior Superlatives." The purpose is to recognize those seniors who have made significant contributions to their school and who have most clearly exemplified in their school careers those ideals for which Berry has come to stand. The Editorial Staff of the 1961 Torch sincerely hopes that the Mount Berry School for Boys will come to cherish this new feature among its permanent and honored traditions.

Selections to "Who's Who at the Mount Berry School for Boys" are made by the popular vote of the members of the senior class. To be eligible for selection, a boy should excel in at least one of the following aspects of school life—scholarship; spiritual leadership; athletics; forensic and publication activities; campus and community citizenship; leadership—and he should be outstanding in other aspects as well.

Mountain Day

MOUNTAIN DAY, the traditional observance of the birthday of Miss Martha Berry, founder of the Berry Schools, and the Annual Homecoming of the Berry Alumni was celebrated jointly this year. The celebration marked the 94th anniversary of Miss Berry's birth.

The Grand March had to be postponed for a week because of rain.

Stan looks busy.

This is a happy group!

The band starts to play.

We give to the Martha Berry Endowment Fund.

The Grand March begins-

A long line of students—

Onlookers.

A column of eight-

The March moves along.

A beautiful sight—blue, green, pink and white.

THE CANDLELIGHT SERVICE is held just before Christmas holidays each year, when everyone is in a festive mood. Music furnished by the choir and soloists, scenes by the students, and its procession of students and visitors carrying lighted candles makes it one of the most beautiful events of the year.

Junior-Senior Prom

One of the highlights of the year is the JUNIOR-SENIOR PROM. Many weeks of planning goes into this project.

This year's Junior-Senior Prom was centered around the theme "Old South Ball." The colors used were red, gray, blue and white—the official colors of the Confed-

Music for the occasion was furnished by the "Georgians."

The Junior-Senior Prom was enjoyed

A WORLD WITHOUT PAPER?

Yes, a world without paper would be dreary indeed.

Paper, like thousands of other products Americans use every day, comes from trees.

That's why we should protect growing trees. Good forest lands mean good jobs, wildlife and recreation—full use of our natural resources.

NOTE OF THANKS

In order to send a yearbook to the press, one needs not only time and patience, but also the cooperation of all the students and faculty. Without that cooperation there would be no annual. Sending a yearbook to the press is the result of no one man's efforts, but the efforts of all. Therefore, the staff of the 1960 Torch would like to thank the faculty and the student body for helping to make this publication possible.
